HERE AND THERE.

The death was simply terrible.

Some little tobacco is still in the field.

The ball was the "biggest thing on ice."

The hawks did a "rattling" business during the fair.

Business was good with everybody last week.

The racing was a new feature at the fair.

Correspondents can now fall into ranks for the winter campaign.

Several hundred of our subscribers failed to get into the drawing.

The city was clock full of pretty young ladies, but then you know it was "fair" week.

G. H. Brandon is the ugliest Jeweler in town, but he has the prettiest assortment of necklaces we ever saw.

Mr. Edward A. Stone and Miss Ella Richardson, will be married at Bellevue church next Thursday night.

Some of our Republican friends who subscribed to pay when Hancock was elected, have already sent up the shekels, having given up the ghost.

The city was crowded with visitors last week. There were a great many beautiful young ladies, many of whom yet remain.

Mr. Jas. Thacker and Miss Emma Tate, of this city, eloped to Clarksville last Wednesday night and were married.

The crowd on Saturday was immense. The SOUTH KENTUCKIAN drawing was probably the attraction, as the attendance on the other days was not as large as usual.

We are under obligations to Mr. V. W. Cralph, who had control of the Floral Hall, and Mr. E. H. Cook, President of the Association, for favors concerning our distribution.

Capt. Baker, col. of Wallonia, Trigg county, brought in the first hoghead of new tobacco on the 5th, last, to Giant & Sons and received the premium offered. However, instead of taking the whisky he took the amount, $5.00, in cash.

A mistake was made in calling the name that drew the Cralph, E. J. Falkner held ticket 175 and his name was called through mistake instead of Murchek McIntosh who held the lucky number 275. The mistake was discovered in verifying the result and comparing the numbers.

The Delating Society will meet next Saturday night in the basement of the Christian church, at which time an interesting discussion will take place. Every body is invited to attend and the occasion will be made an entertaining one. The meetings will be held regularly hereafter every Saturday night.

A variant negro from the country, stole a bottle of chloroform Saturday thinking it was perfume and presented it to his dulcinea. She poured a quantity of it on her handkerchief and inhaled it, and in a short time fell insensible on the pavement. She was placed under the pump and water pumped on her for some time, and finally placed in a wagon and taken home, two weeks ago.

Miss Lizzie Handolph a boarder in Bethel Female College is very ill with scarlet fever and there has been a stampede of the boarders. The school will be temporarily suspended as several others show symptoms of the dread disease.

Rather a novel wedding took place in Cadiz on the 5th inst. A young gentleman had been five times refused the hand of his choice and on that evening she started to prayer meeting with her family and her lover fell in with them and the couple dropped back behind, stopped at the hotel where a preacher was in waiting and were married. They then went on to prayer meeting and afterwards the new son-in-law wrote a note to the father-in-law, telling him that his daughter had married and would not return home that night. The parties were Mr. Jno. R. Avelitt and Miss Cornelia Dabney, a daughter of Judge T. C. Dabney.

Our readers will have to pardon our short comings this week. We were too busy at the fair with other duties to write a line last week and so we were compelled to do our entire work yesterday morning. We were even then unfit for editorial work having only partly recovered from an attack of chills and fever with which we had to contend during the fair. With head aching, lungs stopped up with cold and five printers at our elbow yelling for copy, we ought not to be expected to get out as good a paper as usual. But the fair is over now and we are glad of it, and intend to try harder than ever to make the KENTUCKIAN a welcome visitor to your homes.

Don't forget the Debate Saturday night.

Turn out and give Ada Gray a full house.

Young men and old make no mistake, but call early and examine the finest, best and cheapest line of fall goods at J. S. Chastain's, agent for Jacob Reed's Sons, Philadelphia, Pa.

Persons who draw premiums will please call and get them at their earliest convenience.

Mr. J. D. Hays got out a daily Real Estate Bulletin during the Fair. Thanks to him for kind notices and as X.

Mr. D. M. Scruggs, of Clarksville, who drew a $500 prize, had his ticket for fifty cents just before the drawing and now wishes he had waited.

Messrs. Gish & Garner are selling Common 1st Note paper at 5 cents per quire or 50 cents per ream. They are selling foolscap at the same quality, at 15 cents per quire or $2.50 per ream.

About fifteen or twenty gentlemen from the city and county, left yesterday for Pennsylvania and Maryland to sell Bed Springs. Messrs. Geo. Hart, Hiram Phelps, and Jas. Winfree, from the city went.

Messrs. Buckner and Woodbridge received Wednesday the 5th a hoghead of new tobacco. The tobacco was delivered by Mr. E. D. Jones, of Beavly, who is one of our largest and best planters.

Julia A. Hunt will play here next Monday and Tuesday nights. She is a stranger to our people but the Press speaks well of her where she has been. The following is clipped from a Kentucky paper.

Julia A. Hunt, a girl of unusual beauty and talent, is playing at the Clarksville theatre. She is a native of Kentucky and has been playing at the Clarksville theatre for some time. She is a native of Kentucky and has been playing at the Clarksville theatre for some time.

A case of scarlet fever having occurred in our college-hospital, I promptly advised my patrons of the same, proposing to carry out their wishes, many of whom have requested that their daughters be sent home and allowed to remain till it is safe to return. In conformity with their wishes I have suspended school and have permitted the boarders to go home. I shall be as prompt to notify them as I was to notify their parents of the presence of the disease. There is but one case of scarlet fever.
